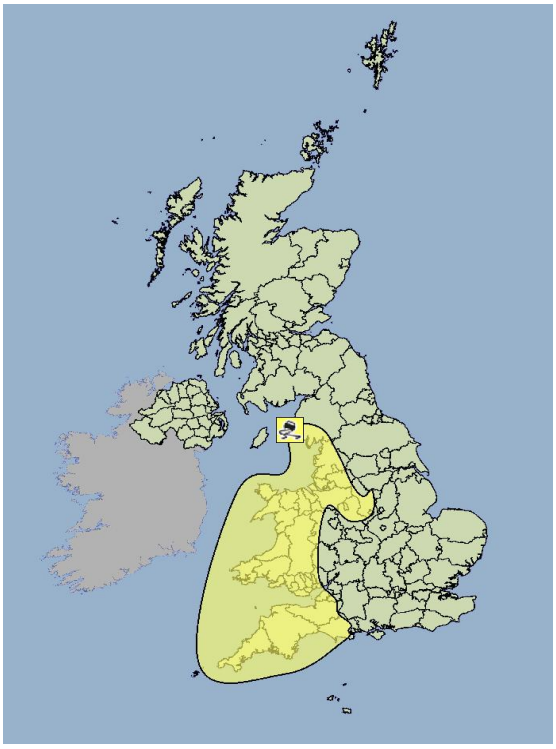
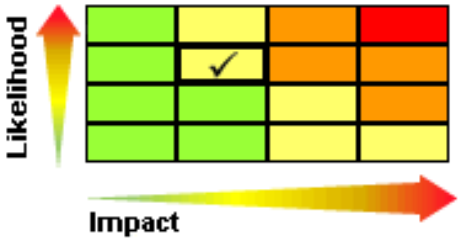
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Showers will continue pushing across Wales and western England through Thursday night and into Friday. With some cold air in place these will fall as a mixture of rain, sleet and hail at low levels with snow mainly above 150 m. Surface temperatures will readily fall on Thursday evening leading to icy stretches forming, mainly on untreated surfaces but with continuing showers some wash off is possible.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 19:00 on Thu, 18th Jan 2018 until 10:00 on Fri, 19th Jan 2018

Icy stretches are expected to form on Thursday night lasting into Friday morning.

There will probably be some ice on untreated roads, pavements and cycle paths leading to some injuries from slips and falls.

In addition rain, hail, sleet and, over higher ground, snow showers will continue to push across Wales and western England with some small accumulations over the higher ground of Wales. These may lead to some difficult driving conditions in places and some longer journey times.
